8. [redacted] Jerome Levinson, Counsel, Senate Foreign Relations Committee Subcommittee on Multinational Corporations, called and said he wanted to be sure they had Bill Broe's answers to the questionnaire they had submitted in time for the hearings tomorrow. I said we were doing our best but I could not make a commitment.

Later in the day, Barbara Yerritt, on Levinson's staff, called to repeat Levinson's request and said he wanted to talk to me between 1:00 and 2:00 today. I told her I would be out to lunch at that time but he could talk to someone else in the office.

Braswell said Chairman Stennis was recovering slowly but it would be several months before he will be back in top form and even now was being allowed to see only one visitor a day. I reminded him of the Director's desire to see the Chairman as soon as feasible.

We talked at some length about our retirement ceiling under CIARDS and various devices for coping with that problem. See
